

Leagrave Primary School have been honoured by SuperKind for its social impact work. We were named regional winner for East of England in the SuperKind Social Impact Schools Award, after our commitment to help our local community.

Over 1,000 schools nationwide signed up to the SuperKind Social Impact Schools Award programme, committing to placing social action and charity work at the heart of their education. SuperKind's aim is to encourage schools to integrate social action and philanthropy into the wider curriculum.

Throughout the school year, our pupils at Leagrave recorded a total of 9622 social actions to help our school and our wider community.

We took part in a range of age-appropriate activities to support others and make a positive difference. We are so proud of each and every one of the pupils for their hard work and dedication. The children have been able to see themselves as change makers. They have gained confidence, realised that their voice matters and has a real, lasting impact on the world around them.

Keren Mitchell, co-founder of SuperKind, said: "We're thrilled to award Leagrave Primary School with SuperKind's Social Impact Schools Award which recognises their efforts throughout the school year to carry out social actions close to their heart."
